Did You Know??

Major Bertrand De Jarnette was born in the little town of La Monte, Missouri on 23 December 1895. The De Jarnette's had been residing in this region for some years. There is a De Jarnette cemetery and various streets in neighboring Sedalia, Missouri are named after members of his family. His father was number eight of 15 children. The De Jarnette's are everywhere in mid-Missouri.

Just Thinking out Loud

Some years ago, I was a member of John Denver's (the singer/songwriter and fellow pilot) ecology group known as the Windstar Foundation. One year, in conjunction with his conference, we attended a lecture by the famous author Deepak Chopra MD. In this particular presentation, he calculated out the number of molecules and atoms in the human body. He proceeded to make a very logical case for each and every one of us containing atoms that were once contained in the body of Jesus Christ as well as Gandhi, Buddha and other masters who have roamed the earth. Statistically his claims seem to be on solid ground.

While maybe a bit esoteric, it is true that all of us have a bit of Dr. Major Bertrand De Jarnette and therefore SORSI within our beings. We are all family.

Inside each of us is also some of De Jarnette's dream. To understand why people suffer and be of service to humanity. He afforded us these gifts through his lifetime of research and hard work. Many of us have benefited from his efforts and all of us have helped hundreds and thousands of others.

Help us keep the mission alive.

Looking forward to seeing you there.
